

Choosing a Program Observation Instrument

Program Observation Instruments (POI) provide a specific structure that guides the observer's review of implemented practices. The information gathered by using a POI helps early childhood and school-age professionals see current strengths and identify areas for growth. The POIs suggested for use in Keystone STARS allow programs to use an observer lens that complements their unique priorities for quality improvement and professional learning.

Learn more at pakeys.org/pqa/poi

